Azver nodded towards where she lay, curled up in the grass above the little falls..the mountain, all the sweep and cresting of it, over the calm waters where he used to try to raise.Of the four of them, only the Doorkeeper moved and spoke. He took a step forward, looking from one young man to the next and the next. He said, "You trusted me, giving me your names. Will you trust me now?".Anieb kept a better pace than seemed possible in a woman so famished and destroyed, walking almost naked in the chill of the rain. All her will was aimed on walking forward; she had nothing else in her mind, not him, not anything. But she was there bodily with him, and he felt her presence as keenly and strangely as when she had come to his summoning. The rain ran down her naked head and body. He made her stop to put on his shirt. He was ashamed of it, for it was filthy, he having worn it all these weeks. She let him pull it over her head and then walked right on. She could not go quickly, but she went steadily, her eyes fixed on the faint cart track they followed, till the night came early under the rain clouds, and they could not see where to set their feet.. "Medra," she said. Her sore mouth could not speak clearly. He knelt down and took her hands, looking into her face.. "That?" I pointed at the glass wall..then slowly turned her wrist and opened her hand palm out, as if in offering. He had seen Anieb."I know. I said everything wrong. I did everything wrong. I betrayed everything. The magic. And the music. And you.".School.
